

WOMEN RELIGIOUS HISTORY SOURCES: A DIGITAL GUIDE TO REPOSITORIES IN NORTH AMERICA

Sixth Edition

August 2021

FOREWORD AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This initiative intends to provide scholars with an update to the last comprehensive resource on Women Religious Archives, Women Religious History Sources: A Guide to Repositories in the United States, edited by Evangeline Thomas, CSJ, and published in 1983. In the Fate of Religious Orders Archives Conference, held at Catholic University on March 29, 2017, Prof. Carol K. Coburn of Avila University noted the importance of the 1983 resource to scholars to this day in conducting research. She challenged and encouraged archivists to return to the project by compiling a revised edition and members of the ACWR board in attendance felt this directly aligned with our organization's mission. The Catholic Research Resource Alliance (CRRA) has graciously offered us a digital platform to share this resource with scholars, teachers, and the public at large.

Scholars, please note that the geographical location of the archives listed in the directory does not necessarily limit its scope to that city and/or state. Inquire about the full scope of the collection utilizing the Contact information field in the directory entries.

This directory will be updated regularly as submissions are received. If your community collection is currently not included in this edition, please consider filling out the template below and return the completed information to the ACWR National Office at archivistsacwr@gmail.com.

Holdings: Our archival holdings total approximately 400 linear feet and span the 19th, 20th, and 21st centuries.

Scope and Content: Mainly information on the Ursuline Sisters of Cleveland from when we immigrated to Cleveland, Ohio, from the Ursuline Monastery of Boulogne-sur-Mer, France, in 1850, to the present. Our holdings, which include manuscripts, correspondence, books, artworks, photographs, audio-visual materials, artifacts, as well as paper materials, document our history, spirituality, and ministry, primarily in education (pre-school through college), as we were the first religious congregation in Cleveland and founded the first Catholic school in Cleveland. Our holdings also relate to various other mission sites in the United States and El Salvador, where our sisters served on the Cleveland Latin America Mission Team, from 1968-2014. We also house a collection (approximately 133 linear feet of the 400 total) of writings (letters, to and from; notebooks, journals), photo albums, books, and artifacts belonging to Sister Dorothy Kazel, who was murdered in El Salvador in 1980, with lay missionary Jean Donovan and Maryknoll Sisters Ita Ford and Maura Clarke, and newspaper articles, legal, and government documents relating to the women's murder. Our Sister Dorothy Kazel Collection also includes numerous publications (books, articles, and others), memorials (artwork, poetry, plays, videos, and other media), and anniversary celebrations (liturgies) in honor of the four churchwomen, from 1980 to the present.

Email: archives@ssnd.org

Hours: Mon-Fri 8-4:30

Access: Open with some restrictions; contact the archives for further information

Holdings: 2,000 linear feet

Scope and Content: The collection includes records from eight former province archives (Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Baltimore, Maryland; St. Louis, Missouri; Mankato, Minnesota; Canada; Wilton, Connecticut; Chicago, Illinois; and Dallas, Texas) and records documenting the congregation in North America as a whole. The collection also contains records of SSND life and ministry in Japan, Guam, England and Puerto Rico, as well as in mission extensions in Africa and Latin America, all of which have connections with the North American provinces. The SSND North American Archives contains documents, photographs, books and audio-visual materials related to the life and ministry of SSND in North America. Some examples of records are chronicles from each mission; minutes and working papers from chapters, assemblies and committee meetings; correspondence; deceased member files; administrative records; records from mission extensions, etc. Because education always has been an integral aspect of the congregation's ministry, the archives also contain many records that document the history of Catholic education in North America.
